The Kent State University Press welcomes inquiries and proposals, whether you have completed a full manuscript or are in the early stages of writing. When submitting a proposal, we ask that you include the following:

1. A proposed title for the book, your full name as you would like it to appear on the book, and, optionally, your pronouns;
2. An abstract of no more than around 150 words (your book's "elevator pitch");
3. A description of the project (2-3 pages, double-spaced) that includes
  - a. its argument and purpose
  - b. its importance and contribution to its field or subject area
  - c. its target audience
  - d. its suitability to KSU Press's publishing program, and
  - e. whether any part of the project has been previously published (if so, where);
4. A table of contents in which each chapter is described by a short paragraph;
5. A list of comparable/competing titles with explanations of how your project is similar to and distinct from each;
6. A list of suggested readers who have not yet seen the manuscript. If this is an academic book, please do not include anyone from your department or your dissertation committee;
7. Any opportunities you foresee for being able to help promote the book (e.g., giving author talks, belonging to a speaker's bureau, a strong social media presence, etc.);
8. If your project is a revised dissertation, whether the original dissertation is available or is embargoed (if embargoed, for how long);
9. The total projected length of the manuscript in words, and the projected number and type of illustrations (to include tables, figures, photos, maps, etc.);
10. The projected date for full manuscript completion;
11. Your current CV or résumé;
12. Two or three sample chapters, if available, one of which should be the introduction.
